A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Mr. Bess, here's a happy new year to you. And the peace of the Great White Bear's wish; And when you have rated all the clean-nuts out. We'll come and partake of the dish.

Madame Frances, here's the top of the morning to you. And a prosperous time all the while. Forget, if you can, that you failed in your plan. Of shifting us out of the Nile.

Cousin Jonathan, too, our best wishes to you. You've come to Manila to stay; Please obviate friction, remove the restriction. You've placed on our commerce that way.

Prince Henry, to you, our greetings are few. Good luck and a happy new year; When next year comes round, we trust you'll be found. In Hongkong, or at least somewhere near.

To our Governor, new, he will learn what to do. In the year that commences to-morrow. So Henry, my dear, here's a happy new year. May your advent occasion no sorrow.

Our new General, he may a martinet be. But we trust he will have a good time. And we'll get the day that he will use. In Hongkong's salubrious clime.

To our friends, one and all, rich and poor, great or small. Hearty greetings and best of good cheer. May your balance increase to ten thousand apices. In the forthcoming Happy New Year.

KING'S OWN REGIMENTAL INTER-COMpany CHALLENGE-ATHLETIC.
G Company and the Band and Drums are the two survivors from the semi-finals in this competition. The final tie is to be decided by the best of three matches, the first match of which is to be played off on Monday, 2nd January, and the second on Friday, 6th January. Kick-off at 3.30 p.m. Through the kindness of the Hongkong P. C. in placing their ground at the disposal of the Regiment, the match will be played on the Club ground and not on the military ground. Both teams are strong and an excellent match is expected.

CANTON NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
ANOTHER GREAT FIRE.
Canton, December 30.
Last night a fire broke out near the wharf of the Hongkong steamers. It resulted in the destruction of some seventy buildings. At one time during the progress of the fire, it threatened to involve the steamer wharf, and it was only by heroic efforts that this was prevented. The S.S. Honam, which was lying at the wharf when the fire began, was moved off into the river to be out of the reach of danger.

THE ALLEGED RETURN OF THE PLACER.
After all, there was just a slight ground for the rumour that reached you in Hongkong to the effect that the Rubicon Plague had once more appeared in Canton. For the last month there has been quite an epidemic of fever in the city, which is said to have affected eight out of every ten persons. I have not heard of any fatal cases. This fever is in all probability caused by the abnormally dry season.

FIRE INSURANCE.
A Canton Company is offering to insure houses and property indiscriminately at three-quarters per cent. This is a chance that no one ought to miss at this season of the year. It will be interesting to watch this new and more on the part of the Chinese. The promoters of this Company cannot be altogether ignorant of the difficulties and dangers of Fire Insurance in Hongkong.

THE HONGKONG TIMES of the 21st December says—Owing to the recent finds of opium from the S.S. Honam and a Madison, the Opium Farmer has applied to the British Court to be allowed to keep his officers on board while British vessels are in port. It will be remembered that Mr. Archer passed an order some time ago against this practice.

'FRAGRANT WATERS' MURMUR.

That one looms more and more disposed to look back into the past and try to peer into the future, as each year comes to an end.

That, as things go on incessantly measuring itself by days, days, and years, men who reflect on the serious side of life are constrained to ponder over the past, and to take care of grace for the future.

That the good old greeting, 'A Happy New Year,' as often a much greater depth of meaning than the cursory wish for a 'Merry Xmas.'

That the old car is vanishing into the past, I heartily wish all my readers 'A Good and Happy New Year, and many of them!

That the year has been a remarkable one for China and Hongkong, but more by way of preparation for changes than for anything definite accomplished.

That the visit of Mr. Charles Bessford to the Far East will, I feel convinced, exercise a vast influence upon the course of affairs in China.

That it should always remembered the first thing necessary for any satisfactory progress in China is a well-organized body of honest officials.

That to secure this, the staff of the Foreign Customs, and a moderate house-tax would furnish the means of upholding a clean-handed body of officials.

That an efficient army and navy could then be raised, and the increase of trade would follow healthy administration and security of property.

That of course this reform must be necessary, but gradual and not drastic, and, as there is little likelihood of any Chinese statesman doing such work, the duty will most probably fall upon Great Britain.

That in this way alone can the security of capital, sought for by Lord Charles Bessford, be guaranteed.

That Lord Charles has been perhaps the busiest man in the Far East for the last few months, and he must by this time have accumulated an amount of valuable information about China which may yet astonish and awaken the people at home.

That the noble Lord appears to be popular alike with native and European officials and people, and he has been royally received.

That Hongkong has not been behind-hand in its attentions to the gallant representative of the Associated Chambers of Commerce.

That this is all it ought to be. That it is difficult to know whether most to admire the genial spirit of the Lord, or the political sagacity of Lord Charles.

That speaking of the closing year, it may be said that it has been fairly prosperous, and there is perhaps more reason to give it a friendly leave-taking than there existed on the expiration of previous years.

That I note the great event of the departure from England and the Hon. J. H. Stewart Lockhart.

That undoubtedly the reason why the Reuter Agency informed the Far Eastern world of this fact, was that he brings despatches dealing with the Kowloon Extension.

That the delay in the forming of this sub-administrative department of our Government has, so I read it, prevented H.E. the Governor, Sir Henry Blake, from making his speech to the Legislative Council.

That most people think that the Hon. J. H. Stewart Lockhart will make a very efficient Resident for the Kowloon Extension, under Governor Blake.

That the Navy League meeting was a 'proof' to my mind, of the progress of Imperial Federation.

That, if anything pushes ahead the grand idea of unity in the Empire, it is the necessity and advisability of maintaining the British Navy to the point of efficiency and bulk which will secure every one of the branches of our Great Imperial tree.

That the speech of the Chairman (Captain) of the House of Commons, made to all Britishers here in Hongkong, deserves the fullest consideration.

That I hear the Council of the Odd Volume Society have decided on the coming year, and that the young aspirants for debating honours will now have a chance of success.

That the power of freely expressing one's opinions before his fellow-men is a most useful accomplishment in this Colony.

That we therefore hail this new departure with pleasure, and remind all aspirants of the opportunity given.

That, notwithstanding all the minimising remarks recently made about Chinese opinion, people adhere to their former opinion as to the desecration of this beautiful spot.

That the dance given on board the German flag-ship Deutschland was a very pretty function.

That, it is remarked how H.R.H. the Prince and H.R.H. the Princess received every one who came on board, and also how they joined in the efforts to entertain their numerous guests.

That I should not wonder but some of the text of the Royal Grandmother has descended to her grandson.

THE LOSS OF THE 'GLENAYVOY.'

SAFETY OF THE THIRD OFFICER.

HIS STORY OF THE DISASTER.

Hongkong, December 31.

Tidings were anxiously awaited last night in the Colony of the safety of Mr. William Dickson, Chief Officer, Mr. Ainalie, Third Officer, and Mr. F. Wilson, Second Steward, of the ill-fated steamer Glenayvoy, wrecked about twenty or thirty miles from Hongkong.

The two launches which went to search for any survivors returned last night without having found any of the missing man. About six o'clock, however, Mr. Ainalie, the Third Officer, arrived from a most unexpected quarter in the Macao steamer Kwai Ling, and was heartily welcomed at Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co.'s office. Fears are entertained for the safety of the Chief Officer and Second Steward, although all hope is not given up that they may be rescued. It is thought quite probable that they have both landed on one of the many islands in the vicinity. The Chief Officer, William Dickson, is about thirty years of age, a native of London, and had been about two years on the Glenayvoy. Mr. F. Wilson, the Chief Steward, states before he left the ship he put his brother, F. Wilson, the Second Steward, into the No. 3 lifeboat, but he must have gone back to the ship, because he was seen with the Captain and others afterwards, and jumped into the sea when the vessel was going down. He is twenty-one years of age, and is a native of Breck, West Cliff-on-Sea. He only joined the ship this trip in London.

Mr. Ainalie, the Third Officer, gave his story of the occurrence to our representative as follows:—'I had been having dinner, and when I came up on deck I heard the ship strike. I ran up to my boat, the starboard cutter, cut away the falls and then rushed down to get my life belt. I came up again and got my boat out. As soon as she was swung out about thirty Chinamen scrambled into her. I asked them if the plug was in the boat. They answered, 'Yes, all right,' so we lowered away—the Fourth Engineer lowered one end and I the other. I got into the boat which was almost swamped by the Chinese. I ordered them to pull round to the end of the ship and wait. They then told me the plug was not in, the boat at this time being half-full of water, so I took them to the lee side of an island and landed the Chinese there. I then called for volunteers to go to the ship to see if there was anyone left, but only two of the Chinese came with me. Owing to the wind being against us and the waterlogged condition of the boat, I could not sail her to the ship. I had also got my left hand hurt while lowering the boat, and was unable to take an oar myself. Seeing I could make no headway with two Chinamen at the oars, I decided to run before the wind. I met the Second Officer's boat, and cried for a 'bailer,' but he could not supply me with one. I asked if the passengers were safe, and he said he had them in the boat. I ran before the wind to Ai Chau, and moored the boat under the lee of the island all night. We were very kindly treated. The villagers pulled up the boat, and after giving us food piloted us to Cheung Chan Customs Station, where I was received on board the Chinese Customs sailing cruiser Kiung Fei, and treated with great kindness. I was supplied with a new suit of clothes, and my wounded hand was dressed. I was then taken on board the Macao steamer Kwai Ling, and received with every kindness by Captain Murphy, the boat being taken in tow. I arrived in Hongkong shortly before six o'clock.

H.M.S. Rattler after finishing her search in the vicinity of the wreck yesterday, went on to Holo, where she had been previously ordered owing to the disturbed state of the country.

THE MISSING.

The two launches which went out yesterday to the scene of the wreck to search for the survivors, brought back the Chinese from off the islands and the 'body' of Quartermaster Smith. The body was removed to the mortuary, where it now lies. The list of missing now stands at two Europeans and two Chinamen.

ATTEMPTED LARCENY OF JEWELLERY.

ARREST OF TWO CHINESE SHOPLIFTERS.

Yesterday, two Chinese shoplifters were arrested by the Police on a charge of attempting to steal from the store of Messrs. Ullmann and Co., Queen's Road, a large quantity of Jewellery, amounting in value to $500. It appeared that between eleven and twelve o'clock in the morning the two prisoners entered the shop, and speaking in Mandarin Chinese to Mr. Pecheur, an assistant in the shop, through the medium of the shop's clerk, they were taken into the shop, and they had come down to Hongkong to buy some watches of a certain kind to the order of the Mandarin. The salesman said that kind of watch was not sold in the store, but eager to effect a sale showed the men an assortment of watches of another pattern. The men said they wished to consult a friend before purchasing and went away. Mr. Pecheur counted the watches after the men had left and found he was one short. About half-an-hour afterwards the men came back, but Mr. Pecheur did not at first recognise them as the same men. This time they bargained for twenty-four alarm clocks, and an offer was closed at $3 each, the clocks to be taken delivery of to-morrow. One of the men strolled away to the other end of the shop, and the man left with Mr. Pecheur stated he had received instructions from the Mandarin to buy about twenty diamond rings. He was shown a large case containing about 130 rings, and selecting twenty-six ladies' rings and fourteen gentlemen's—he said he would go and bring a friend to see them. Mr. Pecheur intimated he would like to count the contents of the case before he left, and on opening the rings he found there were only 122. Mr. Pecheur went to look up his books and see if he had not sold any rings in the interval since he last counted the rings. The Chinaman meanwhile walked inside the counter and dropped two of the cases containing rings into the show case, and four others on the counter, letting one drop on the floor. Mr. Bernheim noticed the case fall on the floor, and picking it up, said, 'What is this?' The prisoners were then secured, and the missing watch was found in the hand of the man who had been inspecting the rings, and another ring was found in his leggings. A police constable was sent for, and an Indian Police Sergeant (No. 701) and two Indian watchmen took the men into custody until word was sent to the Central Police Station. Detective-Inspector Moffat went down to the shop, and the prisoners were taken to the Police Station. A five-cent piece and four pawn tickets were found on the first prisoner, and a purse containing thirty cents and a capacious wallet was found on the second prisoner. At the Magistrate's today the first defendant said he brought the watch down with him from Canton, and bought a key in the shop next to Ullmann's. He was an accountant, and came down yesterday morning in the Falshim to buy a clock. 'With a five-cent piece' asked the Magistrate. 'I had already paid eighty cents to the man,' said the prisoner. The second said he was a soldier. He came down to buy a clock, for which he offered $3, but the shopman wanted $10. He had only thirty cents. Commander Hastings sentenced each prisoner to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

We seldom criticise the extravagance of others when we are invited to partake thereof.
